The Heartbeat of the Battlefields

Find your African Space

Imagine a step back in time...

Hospitality, comfort and a stimulating environment gives you a unique experience rural in Kwazulu-Natal.

Amble about safely in the surrounding bush, visiting the original drift that was made by James Rorke, and wonder at its clever design.

Take a guided trail to the bushman paintings that overlook the valley from the slopes of the Shiyane Mountain for views over the far reaches of Zululand.

Follow the trading trails that were used by the British soldiers when they invaded Zululand in 1879, and for their retreat when the Zulu army overwhelmed their camp at Isandlwana.

Walk to Matoscheni cemetery just across the Buffalo river, the resting place of soldiers and pioneers.

Visit the museum and the Rorke's Drift Battlefield and see how 100 British soldiers prevented the Zulu army from invading colonial Natal and threatening Durban. Learn how their feat or arms was recognised by the award of 11 Victoria Crosses.
